How to attend a virtual UCAS fair

Our staff will be available to chat to at the UCAS Discovery virtual events taking place on 20-21 April and 5 May. We have created a guide to help your students make the most of the fairs. Download a copy here.

Open Days 2021

You can now register your interest to attend our undergraduate open days in June/July and September. We will be offering online interactive opportunities and hope to be able to invite you to explore our campuses in person.

Subject and event updates

Maths Taster Sessions

The School of Mathematical Sciences is launching a series of free online taster lectures and popular maths talks in April and May so students can experience what a first-year maths lecture is really like. Topics include how to use mathematics in the fight against Covid-19, and tasters of first year modules. Suitable for Year 12/13 A level maths students.

Talks will be available using Teams Live and on demand. Each session will usually include some interactive maths, information about our maths courses, a Q&A session, and the opportunity to meet some of our current maths students - Find out more

Mental Health Literary Resources

We have produced educational resources in collaboration with Aardman Animations that tackle important issues identified by young people; loneliness and isolation, independence, perfectionism, competitiveness and social media. Find out more at whatsupwitheveryone.com

We are currently recruiting students (12-18 year old) for three studies and your students can participate online, via Zoom or Microsoft Teams. All sessions will be after school hours and they will receive an Amazon voucher. Contact Elvira Perez Vallejos if you require any further information.

Opportunities in the School of Humanities

Classics

Our student vlogger, Hannah Parker, has her own YouTube channel for Classics mythology, history and literature . She has a range of content – all under 10 minutes – and much of which connects to A level content.

Hannah also has an interesting story to tell about changing her mind; she started out as an Environmental Biology student before switching to Classical Civilisation. Read Hannah's profile.

Building a successful career in the arts and humanities

While studying for an arts or humanities degree there are lots of opportunities to get involved to share your skills and build your CV. Our degrees build a wide range of transferrable skills that apply to multiple career paths, making our graduates flexible and adaptable as the nature of work changes. From societies, to work placements, to community outreach, our students can tailor their experiences to suit their passions and needs, all while studying what they love.

English

Have you seen our 'This is English at Nottingham' video yet? It provides a quick glance at how literature and language are further explored at university, and some of the skills-building activities our students are involved in. We also have three new student profiles showing what our graduates did next after completing their degrees. Budding authors and journalists may be particularly interested to read Rob Temple's university reflections on his road to published author success.

Geographical Association Event -

Red in tooth and trotter: animal geographies in Northwest Italy Wednesday 28 April, 4-5pm

Dr Robert Hearn will introduce you to the wonderful world of 'animal geographies'. Based on his extensive fieldwork in North West Italy, Robert explores histories of human interactions with wolves and wild boar. This session will show how a focus on 'human' geography is often not enough, we must think about 'more-than-human geographies' – this is especially important in this pandemic-era where human-animal interactions have literally changed our way of life.

Care Professionals Training Event - 27 May, 10am-12:15pm

We would like to invite you to our digital event for professionals working with Looked After Children. This event is being run jointly between ourselves and Nottingham Trent University. The event will take place on 27th May 10am-12.15pm and we will provide you with key information and updates needed for you to support any care experienced young person who is considering attending university. There will also be an opportunity to hear from current students about their experiences. We appreciate that you may not be able to attend the session 'live' and so we will provide a recording of the session along with some resources we think are useful to those supporting future university students on request.

To give your thoughts on what you would like to hear during the session and to register your interest in attending or receiving a recording please click here

Please feel free to forward this invitation to anyone you think would find the session useful. We hope you can join us!
